HERO: Raheem Sterling

by Rachael Burford

BBC local democracy reporter

A TALENTED young footballer who needed a life-saving transplant found a donor thousands of miles away after his hero Raheem Sterling campaigned to find a match.

Damary Dawkins, 12, a member of Crystal Palace's elite development squad, was diagnosed with very rare acute lymphoblastic leukaemia aged nine.

Last summer his parents were told he would not live past Christmas if a blood stem cell donor was not found. However, no one in the Dagenham schoolboy's family or on the worldwide transplant register was a match.

Manchester City and England star Sterling stepped in with pleas to find a donor on his social media accounts and encouraged people from ethnic minority backgrounds to join the register.

Crystal Palace also ran a campaign, working with blood cancer charity DKMS. In December a donor was finally found in the US.

Damary's father Tony Dawkins said: "He's doing well now. He's getting a bit restless in hospital and desperately wants to get back on the football field. We are hoping he will be out soon."

"Raheem Sterling's support has been amazing. He came down just before Christmas and stayed for two hours. He was giving Damary words of encouragement. It's definitely helped him through."

Almost 70 per cent of patients who need a stem cell transplant can find a match from a stranger but this drops to just 20 per cent for those from a black, Asian or ethnic minority background.

Sterling wrote on Facebook: "Doctors have confirmed Damary's only hope of survival is through stem cell treatment. If you are of Afro-Caribbean descent please sign up to be a donor, you could be a match for Damary or someone else that needs your help."

Mr Dawkins added: "The social media campaign really helped ... I just don't think Damary would be here now if it hadn't been for all the support we got."

Damary said: "Sterling's my favourite player so it was nice to meet him. I just want to get back to playing football now."

The family have also been supported by the African-Caribbean Leukaemia Trust.

Sterling recently wrote a letter to a young Manchester City fan, urging him to "stand tall" after he was racially abused. Ethan Ross's grandmother contacted the footballer because her grandson was having a "tough time".

Man and woman receive knife wounds during burglary

TWO people were stabbed in an aggravated burglary in Barking on Wednesday morning.

The victims were attacked during the raid at around 5am and taken to hospital.

According to the Metropolitan Police Twitter account @MPSBarkDag a gun was also found.

Their tweet said: "Police are on scene in Farr Avenue, Barking following an aggravated burglary just before 5am. Two victims were stabbed during the incident and are currently at an east London hospital.

"A firearm has also been recovered. No arrests have been made & a crime scene remains in place."

The victims were a 22-year-old woman, who was stabbed in the hand, and a 27-year-old man, who was knifed in the arm, police said.

Their conditions are not life-threatening.

Calls grow to install a lift at Tube station

by Alice Richardson

Local democracy reporter

PEOPLE are demanding step-free access at a Tube station they say is "not fit for the 21st century".

Leytonstone station has no train to pavement step-free options and campaigners are planning another protest.

They say catching a train to or from Leytonstone station is impossible for many with mobility problems, and people with children in buggies or those carrying heavy luggage also find it difficult.

A total of 75 of London's Underground stations have step-free access and more stations are scheduled to be converted.

By 2022, it is expected that 40 per cent of the network will have step-free access, but there are no plans for Leytonstone station.

Leytonstone station is used by 10million people every year and campaigners led by members of Waltham Forest Labour Party are calling for change.

Supported by John Cryer, MP for Leyton and Wanstead, and Waltham Forest Council, campaigners say they are confident they will be able to gain traction in the coming weeks and months.

A petition has been created calling for lifts to be installed at the station, which has already gathered 1,000 signatures

PLEA: Campaigners for step-free access at Leytonstone Tube with, on the right, John Cryer, MP and Cllr Clyde Loakes, deputy leader of Waltham Forest Council – which the group hopes to double before presenting it to Transport for London.

Leytonstone Tube station was first opened in 1856 and is the nearest underground station to Whipps Cross Hospital, part of Barts NHS Trust, the largest NHS trust in the country.

Liz Fenton, chairman of Leytonstone ward Labour Party, said: "Leytonstone is a major hub and the local population is expanding."

"It is shocking that in the 21st century many people with mobility issues are still unable to use their local Tube station."

Liz Floyd, women's officer for Leytonstone ward Labour Party, said: "We live in an advanced industrial economy, yet we are being told that there is not enough money to make Leytonstone station fully accessible."

Under a five-year strategy announced last month, TfL is pledging to make more stations fully accessible, meaning that "more than a third of the Tube network will be step-free by 2020".

TfL has also recommended 21 Overground and National Rail stations receive Access for All funding from Government to improve connectivity for customers with accessibility needs.

Spotlight on use of force in police custody

AN unannounced visit in July to Met Police custody suites resulted in inspectors noting concerns about the time some detainees remained in spit and bite guards (known as spit hoods), use of poor techniques, and the proportionality of some of the force used.

The inspection by HM Inspectorate of Prisons and HM Inspectorate of Constabulary and Fire & Rescue Services found "positive features" but had two main causes for concern.

The report said: "The governance and oversight of the use of force in custody were not adequate to ensure that all use of force was proportionate and justified for the risk or threat posed. Not all use of force in custody suites was recorded, or the force used was not always accurately reflected in the custody record."

It said the number of strip searches was high, and included children and a higher proportion of black and minority ethnic detainees. Not all searches seen during the inspection were warranted or properly justified.

Noting the second cause of concern, the report said oversight of the provision of healthcare was poor, outcomes for detainees were inconsistent, and not all detainees received prompt access to care.

The report recommended use of force should be recorded fully and accurately, and provision of healthcare services should be more robust.

Students' business is coming up roses

TWO students at Barking and Dagenham College have seen their business bloom.

They returned to education in 2017 after being unemployed to study for a two-year BTEC in enterprise and entrepreneurship.

Petals of Wonderland is owned and run by best friends, Georgina Bristow and Karla Speller.

They are both trained and qualified in floristry and each have over 10 years' experience working in flower shops.

They wanted to start a clothing business when they started the course, as they wanted to work around the constraints of home life by working for themselves, but throughout their studies there were many changes and by the end of their first year they returned to floristry.

Tim Bamforth-White, head of business industries at the college, said: "They finally launched their business in November at the opening of The Alcove, a space for young entrepreneurs to meet, share ideas and develop their business free of charge, in the Business Enterprise Centre.

"They were delighted to be invited to showcase their work including their Christmas wreaths and decorations and had the opportunity to meet with the mayor."

Georgina and Karla's business did really well over the festive period, selling more than 30 wreaths, and bouquets and decorations.

Council hosts violence summit

THE capital's police and NHS leaders discussed ways to bring down crime at east London's first serious violence summit hosted by Barking and Dagenham Council this week.

The deputy mayor for policing and crime Sophie Linden and Martin Griffiths, lead trauma surgeon at Royal London, were among the speakers who described how London is tackling violence, particularly knife crime.

Community representatives were also asked about the ways they believed violence could be reduced.

Darren Rodwell, Barking and Dagenham council leader said: "This is just the start. It won't stop serious crime overnight, but it's part of our commitment to find solutions to help prevent future violence."

BOOK EARLY TO AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT

Laser Mayhem in Essex near London offers the latest in cutting edge outdoor Laser Tag technology making it more of an intense and gripping game than your average Quazer and Laser Quest days out. Our laser tag equipment is brilliant for days out, birthday parties, stag and hen, and corporate events.

We are based in Abridge, Essex just off the north circular, M11 and M25; so Mayhem is easily accessible from London by car or you can also get to us on the Tube via Theydon-Bois station on the London Central Line (30min from Liverpool St) where we offer a free pick up and drop off service.

Laser Mayhem is the ideal venue for birthday parties from the ages of 7 to 80, what could be better than hiding behind: tanks, planes, helicopters, forts and cars? What could be more thrilling than: rescuing pilots, taking out enemy generals and team elimination games? If you're a parent you can either get involved and play or have 2 hours of peace and quiet with complimentary tea available and a heated conference hall to relax in whilst we wear out your 'little soldiers' for you.

Mayhem's Team Building is second to none; Outdoor Laser Tag is a great way for your company to bond and develop into a team whilst having fun and getting any office grudges sorted by shooting each other! We can tailor make a team building day to fit your needs; we have 2 conference rooms and we can also offer a buffet lunch in our team building packages ensuring noone goes hungry during your 'office war'. If you're coming from London we are just off the north circular and M25, otherwise we also offer a free pick up from London underground Theydon Bois station.

Mayhem Laser Tag has over 20 playing fields, 8 of these are dedicated soely to laser tag but we also can use the extra Patinballing fields when Paintballing is finished (normally around 3:30pm onwards).

With our laser tag equipment you can shoot an opponent from 300m away, they are deadly accurate if you use the scope on the laser tagger. If you shoot someone on their gun or on their head, their gun will shout "Ow" telling the player that they have lost a life, when a player gets tagged 7 times their gun will shout "Man down Man down" and will stop them from being able to shoot anyone, then they will be out for the remainder of that game, we normally play at least 10 games in a 2 hour session.
